Agile Coach Test Drive

Establishing an agile coaching relationship is about much more than coaching skills and experience. It's also about the style, cultural, and philosophical match between the prospective coach and organization.

To help with this, we've established a way of getting to know potential clients that is win-win for both. We call it the Agile Coach Test Drive. It's about spending time with you and your organization to get to know both. The agenda looks something like this:

10:30am - we arrive at your site and get settled in

11am - 1pm - we deliver an All Hands - Lunch & Learn for your teams. The topic can be one of the following:

- Intro to Agile & Scrum (if you're just starting out)
- Intro to Agile & Kanban (again, if you're just starting out)
- Essential Patterns of Mature Agile Teams (if you're more experienced)
- Existing half-day and 1-day workshops that have been tailored to this lunch and learn format (includes multiple topics). We prefer the above (Intro or Experienced) variants.

1pm - 1:30pm - Break

1:30pm - 4pm - Meeting(s) with your leadership team, possibly discussing:

- Strategies for adopting agile
- Strengths & weakness of various agile methods
- Agile organizational models
- Virtually any topic your team wants to pursue

4pm - depart

The intent of the Agile Coach Test Drive is for us to get to know each other better, both at a team and leadership level. It's also for us to assess whether you're ready for and committed to going agile, which is a huge factor in delivering success.

Cost (Hardly Anything)

All we ask is you pick up travel costs for the visit. Other than that, you get a free day of agile coaching and training, with no strings attached. If you like what you experience, we hope you'll reach out to establish a game plan. But we will never hound you. One final point: we schedule sessions at gaps within our calendar and they go fast. If you're interested in a session, please move quickly to pin down our mutual schedules.
